

Limited visits during a
COVID-19 outbreak

This long-term care home is currently experiencing an outbreak of COVID-19.

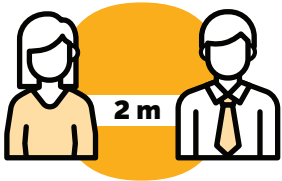

If you are an essential visitor, you may still be allowed to visit the home.

Essential visitors include people performing essential support services (e.g., food delivery, inspector, maintenance, or health care services) or people visiting very ill or palliative residents.

Caregivers who provide direct care to a resident may be permitted into the home during an outbreak.

You will have to be screened before entry. For everyone's protection, we will supply you with personal protective equipment that you must wear during your visit.

Please maintain physical distancing, where possible.

Our staff may have additional requests. If at any time a visitor fails to follow these rules, we may be forced to discontinue visits.

Thank you for your cooperation and helping keep everyone safe.
